In Grenada, whose population in the normal times of 1940 was 5,700 plus, ONLY about 450 persons voted in the Senatorial election Tuesday. In Grenada county, containing about 24,000 persons, ONLY about 800 persons voted. In the light of that superlative indifference, the question, "Is Democracy worth saving," arises.

If people who received the right to vote in free elections do not exercise that right to any greater extent than the people of Grenada, Grenada County and the State of Mississippi exercised it, Mississippi might as well surrender its statehood and become a territory again.

Seriously, the indifference of the people as reflected in the small number of votes cast is alarming.

If this is an unusually sorry edition of the GCW, its sorriness can be accounted for by the fact that the old lady has been at Oxberry all the week, including Sunday, having our former country home moved to our own land. Then too I have felt sorrier than usual.

For reasons best known to myself, I conclude that they must not feed Lem Boone and Orley Lilly much at home.

People of Oxberry may as well get ready to keep their stock up all the winter for, in my opinion, the government will not let cows, horses, mules and hogs run at large on the emergency landing field. We have had a stock law which says that all stock must be kept up all the year but, by common consent, the law has always been ignored after crops were gathered.

The Mayor of Oxberry was out of pocket when I was down there Saturday.

Those who have ordered personal stationery from us for boys in the service think we are giving real stuff at real bargains.

Aint they sweet.

Investigate ALL rumors. Do not go off half-cocked.

You will note from a legal advertisement appearing herein that a beer election will be held in this county early in November. We note that R. L. "Baby" Bingham left his tracks on the casn book, being a lamb returned to the fold.

The elastic in his red gallusses must have popped, for Gene Talmage was returned from the governor's office to civil life in Georgia last week. Good riddance of bad rubbish.

The cotton crop is being harvested very rapidlyy.

Avent McElwrath must have got hold of some seed money for he renewed his subscription last week. One dollar was an old "bo" dollar, made of silver.

Ed Lewis of Tie Plant was a recent visitor.

Personally it is a matter of supreme indifference to me how the beer election goes. Unless I change my mind, I do not expect to use any space, except paid-for space, if any, on the issue.

Matt Cooley, mine host at Hotel de Jail, has enjoyed a good patronage, especially on the week-ends.

Mr. Meyers, who is getting up the rotogravure supplement for the GCW, is making nice progress with the edition. EVERYBODY should be represented in this edition which promises to be the BIGGEST edition ever sent out from Grenada and the FIRST edition of a Mississippi newspaper which contains a rotogravure section.

Dear Major Wade: do not forget to investigate that potential source of topping material I spoke to you of.

In spite of the headlines topping articles depicting MINOR victories, we are STILL losing this war.

Well, now that the election is over, everybody can get back to the essential things—the most essential one being the winning of the war.

Hurd Horton, we understand, has been shooting again. He must have thought Doxey was after him.

MAKE
Fewer Calls
EVERY DAY

In wartime, war needs must have right-of-way. This includes fast telephone service for war agencies and industries producing war weapons.

To provide this service, long distance and local telephone lines, now crowded with the greatest volume of calls in history, must be kept clear of non-essential messages. Ordinary peacetime uses of the telephone must yield right-of-way to war business.

If times were normal, we would build facilities to handle this growing volume of calls, but today, materials needed for telephone construction are going to war—where all of us are glad to have them go.

Therefore we are asking telephone users to make fewer long distance and local calls so as to help keep telephone lines clear for vital war calls.

How You Can Help

Long Distance Calls

Make only the most necessary long distance calls.
Place your calls before 9 a. m.; between noon and 2 p. m.; 5 and 7 p. m.; or after 9 p. m.
Stay near your telephone after you have placed your call.
Plan what you want to say to make your conversation as brief as possible.
Whenever possible, call by number.

Local Calls

Use your telephone sparingly—avoid unnecessary calls.
Be sure to replace your receiver on the hook.
Look up numbers you are not sure of and help avoid the calling of wrong numbers.
Make your conversations brief.

what is America fighting For?

Freedom of Education!

(One of the Essentials of a Democracy)

Of all of the essentials of a Democracy one of the most important is the right of every boy and girl to an education—untainted and untrammeled.

In the good old U. S. A. no one is denied the advantages of knowledge; the opportunity to explore the wide horizons of the sciences, the arts, the crafts—all the subjects that make for a strong, intelligent citizenship and a fuller life.

Can this freedom work? It has since 1776!

Today, Americans are the most literate people in the world—enjoying the world's highest standard of living, thanks to education, sacrifice, individual enterprise, the will to work, and full confidence in the fairness of one's neighbor.

That's what America is fighting for. With these incentives we cannot fail.

The complete series of advertisements on "Essentials of Democracy" is available in booklet form on request.

Dogs of War

Long a figure of speech, "dogs of war" has a real meaning, for Uncle Sam is drafting a K-9 corps for war duty. The army has called for two hundred dogs to be trained as the nucleus of a much larger corps, which will be used to guard food depots and other war establishments, accompanied, of course, by the usual human sentries.

Why a dog, you may ask, if there is already a sentry on the job? Well, a saboteur, for instance, might easily succeed in hiding himself from the human sentry in an isolated spot. But he would have a more difficult time fooling the keen sense of smell possessed by a dog.

Dogs for Defense, Inc., is the organization recruiting dogs for Uncle Sam. Rigid requirements are laid down for canine candidates for the corps. Such dogs as Dalmatians, Dobermanns, Afghans, and German or Belgian shepherds are the ideal types.

These photos show you the training of the first few dogs to be drafted for service in this war. Photos were made in New Jersey, where soldiers from Fort Hancock gave them their first taste of army life.

In other countries dogs have been used in war for years. Russia has an army of 50,000 dogs; Germany is believed to have a canine corps numbering 100,000; France used to have a big dog army, employing dogs even for hauling light guns.

At left, "Hans" learns to look where the finger points. If he misses anything with his eyes his nose will pick it up.

ON PARADE . . . The dogs are exercised and walked many times over the "beat" they are expected to patrol, as shown in the picture above. They learn that men in uniform have a right to be on this "beat," but others have not. So when on night duty the dogs are right on their toes for unauthorized prowlers.

Right: An Afghan and a German shepherd are learning to stand fast under fire here. The soldiers blaze away with their pistols while the dogs are kept in leash.

Worm-Eater

By

VIVIAN HAYES

McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

FROM the moment Lucia Furbush married Allan Cartright, Allan had made a determined effort to induce Lucia to "live down" the Furbushes, and "live up" to the Cartrights. Not but what the Furbushes were nice enough people, but they were a red-blooded lot, and the Cartright blood was a very high-test indigo.

Lucia went Cartright to a gratifying extent, but at the birth of her son she reverted to Furbush long enough to insist upon the baby's being christened John Furbush Jr., thus perpetuating the name of his maternal grandfather.

When Allan Cartright died a few years later, folks remarked that it was a mercy he was taken before he'd had a chance to run through all the money Lucia's Pa had left her. They added that it was a pity she hadn't married Jack Ward, instead—and opined that Lucia thought so, too.

"Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. Tucker, an old neighbor, "to think that Lucia's uncle Dan Furbush is a rich man, too. If only he and Lucia's Pa hadn't had that silly quarrel. John Furbush called Dan a WORM for bein' talked into buyin' a gold-mine, and Dan says to John: 'I'll never forgive you 'til you eat your words! I'm goin' to make a fortune out o' that mine,' he says."

He wrote five years later, just before Lucia's Pa died, and he says: "Well, John, there really was gold in that hole in the ground, and I'm ready to pass you a few nuggets when you write me you're ready to eat that worm. P.S. I call my mine the Wormine."

"No sign of an address, and the post-mark so blurred no one could make it out. Lucia's Pa allowed Dan had left out the address a-purpose to see if his brother had guts enough to trace him from the post-mark. Dan was a great admirer of guts and that's why the 'worm' John slung at him hit him so. He never wrote again, and here's Lucia, a widow, with precious little cash, yet havin' to keep up appearances, as befittin' a Cartright. Wish Dan could see how much John Jr. resembles him—the spittin' image!"

The "spittin' image" was at that moment sprawled sullenly across the ancestral door steps.

"Aw, Ma," he wailed, "I tell ya' I GOTTER be in the circus over at Simpy's barn. I'm one of the freaks. They can't give no sideshow without me. I gotta—"

"That will do," interrupted the departing Mrs. Cartright with finality, "remember, you are not to leave the yard."

• • •

Upon her return late that afternoon, Mrs. Cartright became conscious of a raucous voice in the side yard.

A clothes-line had been strung across the yard. From it fluttered lurid sideshow banners.

Upon a shaky "bally-ho" stand, Simpy, in his father's tuxedo, was proclaiming through a megaphone, "Step up closer, lay-deez and gentulmun."

In addition to the children the free show had attracted one grown-up, a big, bronzed man, who leaned against an apple-tree, grinning broadly.

"Now, lay-deez and gentulmun," intoned Simpy, "I will next introduce to your NO-tice, Perfessor Tatoosky, the celebrated, tattooed worm-eater from the wild jungles of the Amazon RIV-ah—Tubby, quit leanin' against this platform—Perfessor Tattoosky, lay-deez and gentulmun, eats nothing but WORRUMS—writhing, twisting, squirming WORRUMS! And to prove it to you, lay-deez and gentulmun, Perfessor Tattosky will posi-TIVE-ly perform for your amusement.

A loin-clothed figure scrambled onto the stage. His blackened body was lavishly adorned with vivid splotches of paint. Chanting an incantation the "perfessor" threw back the lid of a lacquer jewel-box.

The black fingers drew out a long, twisting worm. The Amazonian tilted back his head, opened his mouth and before his audience's very eyes, did, all too truly, swallow it!

Simultaneously life returned to Mrs. Cartright's palsied limbs. Screeching, she ran toward the platform. It collapsed with a crash.

A strong hand gripped her shoulder.

"Keep your shirt on, Lucia," chuckled the big man, kissing her squarely on the mouth. "A nice way to greet your Uncle Dan! Well, Lucia, I said John Furbush ain't done it! The sins of the grandfathers, eh, Lucia? Ho! Ho! That kid's a real boy, thank the Lord. Shake, Pardner! How'd you and your Ma like to make me a visit out to my ranch?"

That night a familiar cat-call summoned Simpy to his bedroom window.

"Hey, Simpy," called a guarded voice, "you c'n spend the rest of vacation with me on my Uncle Dan's ranch if ya folks will let ya.

"Say, Simpy," the voice became a cautious whisper, "don't ever tell my Uncle Dan that the worm I ate was only a stretched out piece of choc'lit caramel."

THESE curtains were made of the long pieces of good material from each side of a pair of sheets that were worn in the center. They were dyed a soft cream; then wide strips of gingham and narrow ones of prepared bias trimming were stitched in place to make stripes. The chart shows the colors used and also gives the widths and spacing of stripes. In case you should want to use short lengths of goods for the foundation part, stitch these together with seams on the right side; then place contrasting strips over joinings. Colors used should repeat the colors in rugs, pictures, books or bric-a-brac.

EVER since she chalked up that amazing success in "Mrs. Miniver" Greer Garson has been pursued by producers who want her to do a play on Broadway this fall. She's read a dozen scripts and turned them down. Now she's been asked to do one called "Queen Elizabeth"; the asker is Margaret Webster, director - daughter of Dame May Whitty; she directed Miss Garson in her last London stage hit, "Old Music." If "Random Harvest," which the red-haired actress is making with Ronald Colman, is done in time, she may consent.

Frances Gifford, the new "Mrs. Tarzan," really owes her new assignment to the impersonation of Dorothy Lamour that she gave in the recently released "Henry Aldrich Gets Glamour." Clark Gable certainly made his departure from movie-making in a blaze of glory. His latest, "Somewhere I'll Find You," which he did with Lana Turner, has outgrossed every one of the M-G-M pictures he has appeared in over the past seven years, with the exception of "Boom Town," and that doesn't count because it played at advanced admission prices.

A few months ago Ruth Hussey's bridegroom, Robert Longenecker, saw a newspaper picture of the actress. He clipped it and wrote under it, "Here's the girl I'd like to marry." Not long ago he could add "Here's the girl I did marry!" The photographer who took the original photograph, Eric Carpenter, also photographed the young couple's wedding!

Nelson Eddy and Announcer Bob Garred were so busy trying to outwit each other with amateur magic a while ago that the "on the air" signal for their radio show almost caught them off base. Nadine Connor looks upon their efforts with suspicion; she has sworn that the minute the pair shows an interest in the "sawing a woman in half" stunt she'll leave Eddy without a partner.

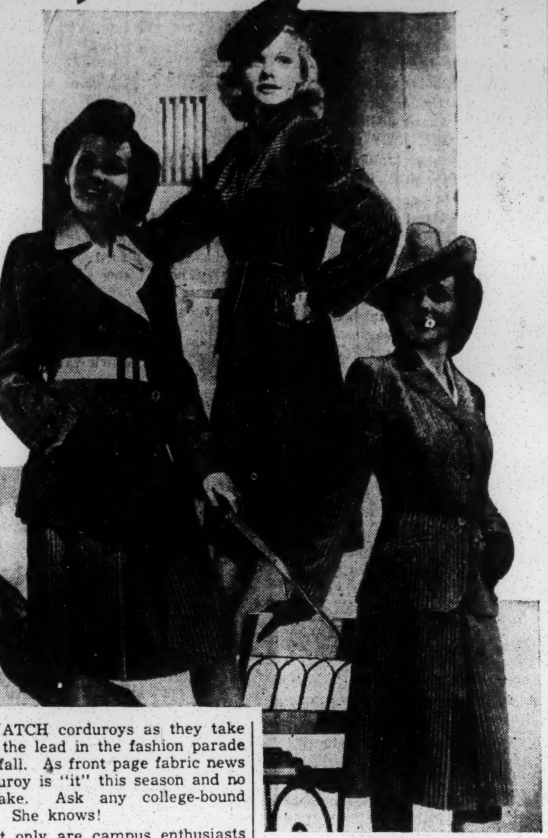
Wide Wale Corduroy Is Given New Importance by Designers

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



WATCH corduroys as they take the lead in the fashion parade this fall. As front page fabric news corduroy is "it" this season and no mistake. Ask any college-bound girl. She knows!

Not only are campus enthusiasts "rushing" corduroy for all it is worth, but though the season is yet young this material is proving so much of an out-and-out choice the fabric sections are booking orders one fast following after another.

To be sure, the fact that corduroy is free from priority rulings is in itself a sufficient reason why enthusiasm for it is running high. However, seeing the stunning coats and suits designers are turning out made of corduroy puts an irresistible desire in one to acquire a whole wardrobe of corduroys. The amazing adaptability of corduroy to all phases of fashion is enough to inspire one to do just that. Certainly corduroy serves as an all-purpose fabric with amazing versatility. You can find in the shops everything from slacks to the smartest sort of town suits and stunning topcoats to satisfy the most exacting and discriminating taste.

Wide wale corduroy is the important news in stylish corduroys this season. The new wide wales are making such a dramatic and spectacular appearance in all costume collections you can find everything from knee-length shorts outfits to daytime boxy jackets and coats that are so craftily styled they really out-style everything in corduroy that has gone before.

Off to town for a big week-end the young lady shown centered in the above illustration chooses to wear a hollow-cut velveteen coat, for it's going to look ever so smart when she goes tea dancing or to the matinee with her soldier. This corduroy velveteen is not only glamorous, but, being cotton and sturdy, it has plenty of common sense back of it.

The fingertip coat pictured to the left will prove a friend indeed come rain or storm. Here is an outfit that shows judgment, common sense and high fashion instinct combined. This two-piece which mounts a reversible corduroy-lined coat over a corduroy skirt is typical of what college girls will be wearing this fall.

They will also be lounging informally or playing hard in corduroy slacks and in culottes made of corduroy. The favorite color in corduroy is a rich beige. College girls also like coats made of bright red corduroy, and forest green corduroy lined with quilted red cotton is another college favorite.

Gabardine Jumper

Lace Blouse

Dressy afternoon styles place emphasis on the velvet suit worn with a blouse fashioned of lace. This is a fashion that is destined to become of outstanding importance as the social season gets into swing.

Lace Adds a Touch Of Feminine Charm

For memorable evenings what better choice than lace—that lovely non-priority charmer that makes women appear at their loveliest. Lace is being partnered with fabric and other media in effective ways. Especially new is the dress that has a full lace skirt topped with a fitted long-torso bodice of black velvet. It is the sort of gown you will want to wear for your man in service who wants you to look pretty and feminine.

The emphasis placed on dressy formal afternoon suits is in a call for lovely blouses of feminine type made of dainty lace. Three richly jeweled buttons add to the gracious attractiveness of a brocaded cotton lace charmer that is warranted to add distinction to winter suits. The lace is an exclusive heavily corded pattern, and with lace on the non-priority list one can feel well dressed and patriotic at the same time.

Gloves, Hat, Shoes and Bag All Dyed in One Vat

Hats, gloves, bag, shoes in fine doeskin dyed in one vat have been made possible through the teamwork of those who are working together to achieve a new color formula for smart accessories.

Your gown is smart black and your accessories are carried out in a vivid one-color technique. There is a new red that is wonderfully effective for monotone accessory ensembles. Green is a favorite, also, and the new fuchsia shades are stunning with black.

Black Velvet

The black dress sleeved in black velvet with a huge bow of black velvet at the waistline of the wrap-around skirt is very distinguished. Coats of the dressy type are also trimmed with black velvet.

JUDAH: AN EXAMPLE OF SELF-SACRIFICE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 44:18-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.—I John 3:16.

The family is still the fundamental unit of society, and is therefore of more importance than the church, the state, or the social order of which it is a vital part. Every force which encourages the breakdown of the sacred relationships of the home and family is set for the destruction of society itself.

Men have too often chosen to go the way of the flesh, and therefore they have disregarded God's plan and purpose. But marriage is just as sacred as ever in His sight; the home is to be kept for Him; and brotherly love still finds a high place among the virtues of real men.

Today's lesson is a continuation of the story of Joseph's life. As we study it we must bear in mind Joseph's dealings with his brethren, who as yet did not recognize him as the one they had sold into captivity. He was bringing them kindly but definitely to the point of real repentance, so that he could show himself gracious to them.

To do so he had brought disaster upon them. Being happily on their way homeward with a new supply of food, they were overtaken and proved to be thieves, and Benjamin, the beloved of their father Jacob, stood condemned by their own words, to death.

In that crisis the mouths of the others seemed closed, but Judah, who had really saved Joseph's life (Gen. 37:26, 27) and who had apparently come to himself as a man of essential goodness, pleaded for Benjamin's life. That plea presented a truly sacrificial brotherly love, as he manifested

I. Courage (v. 18).

Easy rests the yoke of family life as long as all is joyful and prosperous. But when adversity strikes, when sorrow comes, or sickness, or sin, then the true test of devotion is at hand.

It was a brave and manly thing for Judah to stand before the one whom he knew only as the man who was "even as Pharaoh." The circumstances were all against him. He expected the flaming anger of the offended ruler. His brethren had collapsed in despair. It was one of those dark hours which come to every family when someone must demonstrate true love by being strong-hearted and steady.

II. Intelligence (vv. 19-29).

Crises call for more than a cheerful smile or an encouraging word, much as they may mean in such an hour. We must be prepared by our close contact with our loved ones to speak and act with vigor and assurance.

Judah's plea is a masterpiece of argumentation and appeal, demonstrating that he was not only well-informed about his family and its problems, but ready to use his knowledge skillfully and effectively.

III. Self-Denial (vv. 30-33).

One step deeper goes the devotion of this man to his father and his brother. He had done no wrong that merited punishment, but evidently his brother Benjamin had been guilty. Had he been of the spirit of Cain he would have said, "Am I my brother's keeper?" and let him answer for himself. Why should Judah suffer for another? Why should he allow himself to be imprisoned in a strange land to save his father from sorrow and his brother from what seemed to be the just reward for his deeds?

Thus reasons the man of the world, but such is not the language of the true brother, who says, "Let thy servant abide instead of the lad as a bondman."

IV. Love (v. 34).

Love for father and brother underlies all of the courage, conviction and self-sacrifice of a man like Judah. In his younger years, and possibly under the influence of his brothers, he had failed in that respect, but now his real devotion to his brother was evident.

That affection was a real, powerful, and beautiful thing, and yet it is but a faint prefiguring of the affection of the One who "sticketh closer than a brother," who "though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (Prov. 18:24; II Cor. 8:9).

Let us improve the opportunity to review our relations with our own family, to determine whether there is aught that we in intelligent and courageous self-sacrifice should do for our own.

We Can Lose This War

"We Can Lose This War"—ominous words, but nevertheless true.

Many of our people are still living in a fool's paradise, thinking that some divine providence will save this nation.

Many of our people fail to realize that this is THEIR war, that it is a war in which EVERY individual is interested in which EVERY individual must do his or her utmost.

I cannot help but note that most people that I see go blithely about their usual peacetime routine as if they were living in a peaceful world.

I often wonder what it is going to take to awaken our people and our leaders—many of the latter being more sound asleep than the people themselves.

The fall of Stalingrad, already a thing more than a mass of debris, is imminent. Hitler has ordered his general to take that city irrespecttive of the cost. Stalin has destroyed all bridges and boats and has ordered the people of that city to stand and die if necessary. It looks like a case of irresistible force meeting immovable matter. The successful defense of this important city, which, next to Mother Moscow, is a symbol to the Russian people, seems to be improbable.

The sinking by enemy submarines do not seem to be lessening. Sinking of old ships are greater in number than the launching of new ones.

At best there is nothing but a seesaw battle in the Southwest Pacific. Our side has not even begun on its long, bloody and perilous journey to Japan.

The minor successes being scored by the Chinese are probably attributable to the fact that the Japanese are withdrawing to attack Russia from the rear.

No later than Sunday, General Hershey announced that the United States would have over 10,000,000 men under arms before the end of 1943; yet just about half a million of our men are outside the continental United States and these men are scattered all over the earth. To win this war, trained men, well equipped and in sufficient numbers must be in contact with the enemy at some strategic point.

Donald Nelson, I believ it was, announced Sunday that this country was producing, but was not producing fast enough.

The sooner our people appreciate the fact that we are not engaged in a comic opera war like the War with Spain, and that we are pitted against powerful, well-trained, well-equipped fighters, the better off we will be.

Just Monday of this week I heard a United States Senator say that we had the "mightiest fighting machine on earth." God knows I hope he is right; but, if we have such a machine, it is high time that it was being employed in winning the war.

Yes, we can lose this war; in fact, at the present time we ARE losing it.

Heterogeneous Thoughts

Well, the election is over. Maybe the people can forget politics and get their minds and hearts on winning the war. Unless we win this war, Hitler will be appointing our officials before another United States Senator is elected. Facetiously speaking, maybe that will be ONE way to get rid of Bilbo.

Unless ceiling prices are placed on ALL things, the whole scheme is bound to fail. It seems to be the President's plant o have a rigid ceiling on farm products and a "flexible" ceiling—whatever that is—on wages. It is high time that labor—the word being used in the restricted sense and applying to UNION labor—begins to make ITS sacrifices in the war effort.

Unless I change my mind, I do not expect to write anything about the beer election to be held on November 3. The people of Grenada county do not need my advice in the matter, although I have my own convictions in the matter. As a member of the County Election Commission, it will be part of my duty to canvass the returns and make a report about the result of the election. It behooves me to keep my trap shut, and, unles I change my mind, my trap will be shut.

Mr. Meyers, who is aiding us in getting out the rotogravure supplement of the GCW, is meeting almost universal success in contacting the potential cooperators in this issue. This issue promises to be the ONLY issue of a weekly newspaper in Mississippi to have a rotogravure section; and it certainly will be the largest issue of a newspaper ever to be mailed from Grenada.

The old lady, who could not bear the thought of the home where three of our children were born being acquired by others, bought our old home near Oxberry; and, in spite of the difficulties of transportation and the scarcity of labor, has spent Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday down there getting the house skidded to land she now owns which in three-quarters of a mile from the house seat.

UNDER THE MAGNOLIA TREE

By Herbert B. Allen

Two of the finest, most hospitable and most gracious friends I have ever had the privilege of knowing, are Uncle Will and Aunt Adele—Grenada's respected and revered Hoffas. They recently sent their love to Esther and to me; and it is most heartily appreciated and reciprocated.

Uncle Will reminds me of something Mark Twain once wrote: "When I retired from the rebel army in '61 I retired upon Louisiana in good order; at least in good enough order for a person who had not yet learned how to retreat according to the rules of war, and had to trust to native genius."

Uncle Will has been fighting the battles of Grenada for so long that, even if he so desired, he could never learn how to "retreat" from his labor of love for Grenada. No son of the Golden West ever boosted California so ordently as this native son of Ol' Miss depicts the glories of his homeland.

George Bernard Shaw may truthfully declare: "I am NOT a politician, and I have no other bad habits"—but I cannot claim to be in his rare class. One of my failings is an inverterate user of profanity, and Uncle Will, an elder in the Presbyterian Church, used to remonstrate with me in a fatherly manner, urging that as I had an unusually good vocabulary, swearing was especially unnecessary in my particular case.

Another gentleman who very much disliked profanity was Sir Christopher Wren (1632-1723) the famous architect of many of England's famous landmarks. During the building of St. Paul's Cathedral, in the heart of devastated London, Sir Christopher posted the following "Notice to Workmen" employed on its construction:

"Whereas, among laborers and others, the ungodly custom of swearing is too frequently heard, to the dishonour of God and contempt of authority; and to the end that such impiety may be utterly banished from these works, which are intended for the service of God and the honour of religion, it is ordered that profane swearing shall be a sufficient crime to dismiss any labourer."

Only those friends who have our interests at heart take the trouble to point out to us, the errors of our ways. Without such sincere friends, how could we, with Bobbie Burns, "See ourselves as others see us?"

Kindest regards to young Will, Charlie and Louise, and to Martha and her little daughter.

The difficulties in Ireland come with considerable surprise to Americans who know Ireland only through Irish ballads. And the manner in which the Irish news is reported in the press give no light on the real source of the trouble.

Ireland consists of two political divisions. The political divisions are Catholic Eire, and protestant Northern Ireland. It is in Northern Ireland where the American troops are encamped, that the present trouble is taking place.

In protestant Nortnern Ireland, there is a minority of Irish Catholics. The newspapers do not call them by that name; they refer to them as Irish Nationalists. If you will substitute the word Catholic, for Nationalist, you will understand exactly what is causing all the trouble. It is because the Irish Catholics resent the presence of our American troops in Protestant Northern Ireland.

Catholic Ireland is absolutely neutral in the war, and openly threatens to shoot any invader, British, American, and German alike. In the next breath their leaders complain that the British and American governments will not aid them by "loaning" them arms and ammunition.

Of all the nations I have seen on the face of the globe, none is so miserably and chronically ignorant and bigoted as the Catholic Irish region we now call Eire. The present difficulties come as no surprise to veterans of the U. S. Navy who used to put into the harbor of Cork during the first World War. They had their own Irish troubles; and they took care of them in the way that the Irishman understands best. They settled their differences on red Irish noses, and on thick Irish skulls! (Where there's a will, there's a way.)

Quite often, I wish, just out of plain curiosity, that I might be invited to dinner in the home of that fellow who sends out the press releases which declare that the cost of living has increased only 15 percent since Columbus landed in the New World. What does he serve on his table anyway?

He would do me a great favor by coming to Chicago and asking the restaurant proprietors why their prices are up from 50 to 100 percent.

The last watermelon we had cost $1.25. We were afraid to ask the price of the LARGER melons for fear there would be a luxury tax on them. Here in Chicago, the high price of everything is an invisible ration card for nearly three million at least.

* * * *

In countless newspapers of the nation, and in the numberless gaily covered magazines, there is a ceaseless stream of articles recording the miraculous accomplishments of America at war. We are producing vast quantities of this, colossal quantities of that, and astralogical quantities of the other thing. Our soldiers, our sailors, our aviators, and our marines, ae in every port in the globle, except those ports in which they would do the enemy some vital damage.

Our armed forces are photographed under the waving tropical palms in Timbuctoo: and sliding down the North Pole in Santaland. One might derive the impreession from this vast flow of propaganda that we were so formidable that the Nazis' blood would curdle just from contemplating our warlike literature.

War efforts that really count, are costly in terms of casualty lists. They are costly in terms of men killed, wounded, and missing in action. America is not even on the verge of that type of warfare.

All that has taken place to date has been in the nature of raids and skirmishes. Real warfare exists only in the headlines of the newspapers. They are short on advertising, and need news badly in order to sell more copies.

The present war news is largely propaganda. It is a smoke screen—a mighty poor one—thrown out to conceal the weakness of the President's leadership; and the feebleness of the high command in our army and navy. When war comes, you will know it by the genuine ring of real war news. It will not have to be blown up with gas to make it look like what it isn't.

This is no reflection on the few boys that have been in the lines, and who have had their baptism of fire. They have come through in the old smashing, crashing way. My only brother-in-law is supposed to be with the marine commandos in the Solomons. I have no criticism for fighting men. But I have plenty of bitter criticism for the desk generals and land admirals in Washington.

The fog minded high command may look all right to the civilians, but to this veteran, it looks as though their turtle paced activity will eventually cause the killing and wounding of needless hundreds of thousands of American and Allied soldiers and sailors.

What I read in the papers and magazines, and hear on the air, reminds me of the remark of a French officer who witnessed the famous charge of the British Light Brigade at the battle of Balaklava. General Pierre Bosquet admired the grand spectacle, but he truthfully expressed his opinion: "It is magnificent, but it is not war."

What with the old lady having many things to do preparatory to our daughter going off to school, in addition to her many other duties, and with my feeling badly all the week, we make apologies for many sins of omission and commission in this issue.

Unless something is done and done quickly, we are going to be eased into a condition of uncontrolled inflation within a matter of months. Inflation slips up on a nation slowly at first, then it is accelerated rapidly. With a world war to fight, it seems to me that Congress would act quickly before our entire economic structure is imperiled. Nothing short of drastic measures will be of avail.

This peril of inflation will ruin all of us except those who have THINGS, such as land, cotton, livestock, etc. If inflation does come, a fellow with a sow pig would be better off than a person with a box filled with gilt edge securities.

The sow pig would in time, through the processes of reproduction, produce more sow pigs; but the income from even the best of bonds would shrink to a point that it would require a million dollars to buy a loaf of bread.

Sounds fantastic, does it? Well, it happened in Germany after the last war. IT CAN HAPPEN HERE.

In my humble opinion, the only way to prevent this great economic disaster is for the government to put ceiling prices on ALL goods and all services and all wages. ANY exception, like the first break in the dyke, might well jeopardize the whole scheme.

We have been laying off to go over and take a look see at Red Briscoe's new tire repairing equipment, which is the last word. His 20 odd years of experience in retreading, repairing and vulcanizing are valuable assets to this community for, as we have often stated, the repairman will become more and more essential as the supply of new things of whatever nature dwindles.

Look in grandma's trunk, and you are likely to find several thousand dollars worth of Confederate currency. Grandmaw would tell you, if she were alive, that at first the Confederate dollar was worth a dollar in godl; then fifty cents; then a dime; then a penny; then NOTHING. That's a concrete example of inflation which DID happen HERE.

This is almost an adless paper

If the old ratio of 10 to 1, that is 10 men working at home to keep one soldier fighting, still holds true, an army of 13,000,000 men would be absolutely stalled for lack of backers-up on the home front in a nation of 130 million people. It seems to me that it would be better to have 6,000,000 fighting men properly sustained and fed and armed, than twice that number without adequate support from the home front. I believe the idea of a 13 million men army is fantastic.

Such an army would require one of every five males in the country. There are not 13 million men, suitable for combat, in this nation, unless practically all workers are put into tents.

Aint they sweet.

If you prefer to keep your dollars in the bank, in your pocket or under the hearth, you will to that extent cause the government to print that much "invisible greenbacks," and to that extent make the purchasing power of YOUR idle dollars less. The inexorable law of supply and demand is applicable to money as well as to cotton, wheat or sweet milk. The more money there is, the less each dollar will buy. Invest your idle money in war securities.

Your attention is invited to a corrected report on the election in Grenada county. Last week, through error, we gave Doxey 193, instead of 103, in East Ward, Grenada.

Somebody with a fine sense of proportions is going to have to compromise between General Hershey's desire for a 13,000,000 men army and the requirements necessary to keep steam up in the home boilers.

Mr. Meyers, who is helping us on the rotogravure section of the "All Out For Victory" edition, reports that Belgrade, the Grenada Hotel and the Barwin Hotel each has signed up for a page, and that he had secured a number of cooperators in Memphis. He will be around to see YOU soon.

Please rush in the the job orders for Greenfield and Horn face a week-end of idleness and sin.

Grenada County Health Department

Is your child neglected or protected? Diphtheria is practically always a result of neglect. If all parents would take their babies, when they are 6 to 9 months old, to their private physician or to the Health Department and have them protected against Diphtheria, our infant deaths from this disease would soon be eliminated.

Our immunization program has reduced the death rate from Diphtheria from 21 per 100,000 population in 1910 to 1.1 per cent per 100,000 in 1940. Similar results have been obtained in our fight against Smallpox and Typhoid Fever.

Let us warn you not to make the mistake of thinking that because the death rate from these diseases have been so markedly reduced, that your childrenn are safe without immunization or vaccination.

We will begin our immunization and vaccination program at Hardy School on Wednesday, September 30 from 9 a. m. until 11 a. m. and at Holcomb on Thursday, October 1 from 1:30 p. m. until 3:30 p. m. At these conferences, we will give immunization and vaccinations against Typhoid, Smallpox, and Diphtheria.

We want to urge everyone to take advantage of this, since they are being offered by your County Health Department. This is not limited to school children, and we would like to give this protection to every person in the county. We will visit other schools in the county just as fast as we can get to them.

The ideal of every newspaper man is to tell the truth and let the hide go with the hair. Not one does is. He may tell the truth about the things he publishes, but he omits a hell of a lot of things that he knows. I would be run out of town if I published everything I know.

Red Cross Is In Need Of Knitters

In an interview with Miss Jane Young, the urgency of having the ladies of Grenada county volunteer to do knitting for our soldiers, sailors and aviators is imperative now.

Miss Young stated that the story going the rounds to the effect that knitted garments are used by the soldiers as dust cloths and to polish shoes, is not true. It may have been true in World War No. 1 but in this war knitted garments are assigned to posts where the commanding officer requests them and rations them according to the needs of the men.

American women were asked to knit 100,000 (one hundred thousand) garments for the soldiers. So far only 50,000 have been knit.

We have Americans in Iceland and Alaska, and on the high seas, and the knitted garments will add much to their health and comfort.

Please call Miss Jane Young and she will gladly assist you in getting started with your knitting.

It will be MY time soon. I have been putting out money all the year to the tenants and shortly the money will come rolling back, each dollar with a little child called Interest. Speaking of that, I think I am due to pay Mr. Ray interest on this money, even if I used my own, for I have ALWAYS borrowed from him to supply the tenants. They pay me; I pay him.

The young men of this county, as of every other county, are gradually disappearing into the armed forces. War is like that. It feeds upon the youth of the world, leaving behind the worn-out men of middle age (like myself) who have most of their lives behind them, and also leaving the misfits, the cripples, the diseased and the dregs. War is so unnecessary, it seems. The world should be big enough for all.

Important Work Ahead For The Civilians

Governor Johnson welcomed Assistant Regional Director Sollace Mitchell and his Civilian Mobilization staff to Mississippi. This group will spend two weeks in Mississippi assisting the State Office of Civilian Defense and Local Defense Councils in organizing the Citizens Service Corps throughout the State.

In commenting on this phase of Civilian Defense the Governor said: "We are fighting a total war, and a total war can only be won by the united effort of every man, woman and child in America. In every community the war has brought new problems, new tasks and new demands for service to correct these conditions that must be met through volunteer effort.

We need volunteers to assist agencies already established to deal with new problems of health, nutrition, consumer services, housing, education, welfare and child care and recreation for industrial workers and the armed forces. The coordination of these community services in each community has been assigned by executive order of the President of the United States to Office of Civilian Defense.

The Citizens Service Corps has no [illegible] and will operate no program of its own but will further the war programs of these agencies by providing them with volunteer manpower and womanpower and assist in training them for duty in these other agencies.

In each community the organization of the Citizens Service Corps will be effected through the cooperation of the following and other groups: All State Departments; Federal Agencies concerned with the war effort including OPA, its rationing boards, WPB and its salvage boards, FSA, ODT, USDA War Saving Staff, TVA, etc.; Mayors and County Judges; Presidents, Deans and Faculty of the colleges in the cities where the meetings will be held; County and City School Superintendents, Principals and Teachers; Chambers of Commerce; Civic Clubs including Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Exchange, Civitan, and others; Newspaper Publishers and Radio Stations; Legion Posts; Veterans of Foreign Wars; Red Cross Chapters; County Agricultural and Home Demonstration Agents; Farm Bureaus; Women's Organizations, including PTA, Federation of Woman's Clubs, Business and Professional Clubs, etc.; Labor Organizations; Trade and Professional Associations.

Mr. Leland Speed, Chairman of the State Salvage Committee, pointed out that: "As our fighting increases on all fronts, a more intensive drive for Salvage on the home front will be required to sustain our soldiers on the field of battle. We will certainly need more volunteer workers to carry on the important community activities. We urge the quick formation of the Citizens Service Corps from which we can draw volunteer workers."

Dr. Felix J. Underwood, State Health, Hospital and Medical Service Chairman, in commenting on the recruiting feature of the Citizens Service Corps said: "Volunteer Nurses' Aides are needed right now to help carry on important war Services. Every citizen interested in winning the war should participate in organizing the Citizens Service Corps."

Major W. E. Holcomb, State OPA Director, when asked for a statement replied: "This is the assistance OPA and every community needs to understand how consumer interests are being handled by OPA. We welcome the efforts of the Mississippi Defense Council in sponsoring the Citizens Service Corps as a Community Coordinating Agency to aid the War Effort."

The Governor urged members of the participating groups, community leaders, and citizens of Mississippi interested in furthering the war effort, to arrange to attend one of the following sectional meetings: September 28, Greenville, Columbia, Laurel, Tupelo; September 29, Greenwood, Brokhaven, Hattiesburg, Starkville; September 30, Jackson, Natchez, Gulfport, Oxford; October 1, Meridian, Vicksburg, Biloxi, Clarksdale; October 2, Pascagoula.

Saving Fats, An Important Work For Women

[illegible] how extensively [illegible] can be used as food and [illegible] should be turned in to processors to increase our glycerine supply, [illegible] many homemakers [illegible]

Miss May Cresswell, state home demonstration agent, Mississippi State College gives some answers from [illegible] of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The important goal is to build up the nation's total fat supply. By making good use in the kitchen of the fats we save from day to day, getting the most from them as food, we lessen the burden on commercial stocks of fats. Every bit of fat we save and use for food helps. Use all you can for food and cooking—then turn in what is left.

Properly cared for, fats you save are good for several purposes in your regular cooking routine. You can use them for seasoning, frying, cooking, and in some cases for baking too.

Drippings from roasts and other cooked meats make flavorful fats for seasoning . . . you can use them in gravies, when cooking or heating vegetables, in salad dressings, and on wilted lettuce. Try their flavor in spoon-bread. If you use these drippings for baking, you'll need to clarify them.

Bacon drippings are often used for shallow frying—such as for frying eggs, apples, chicken, cabbage, and liver and other lean meats. Bacon, sausage and poultry fats may be used as the fat in cream sauces for vegetables as well as in gravy.

You can use fats trimmed from raw meat in various ways—for frying meats having too little fat for that purpose . . . in suet puddings . . . in pastries. In addition, you can render these meat trimmings and use them as you would use any other fat. Poultry fat is good for shortenings in cakes, biscuits, and other baking. Rendered suet and rendered fresh pork also make good shortening . . . for pastry, biscuits and other quickbreads.

Need For Scrap Imperative

It cannot be too greatly emphasized that there is an urgent need for all kinds of scrap. Blast furnaces of this nation face shutdowns unless their hungry maws are fed scrap metal in ever increasing quantities.

This war above every war in history is a war of steel and iron. The iron mines just cannot produce enough ore to get the job done, but the garrets, the outhouses, the turnrows and the cellars of this nation can make up the deficiency—IF THE PEOPLE WILL JUST GET BUSY.

Mr. McCune Talbert, Street Commissioner of the City of Grenada, attended the great Scrap Drive meeting, sponsored by the Commercial Appeal, in Memphis Tuesday. Mr. Talbert has been appointed to direct the search for scrap in Grenada county.

TURN IN THE SCRAP.

Heterogeneous Thoughts

Closer and closer the war is being brought home. Tightening of tire and gasoline rationing, government control of wages and farm products, further rationing of foods and other products, increased number of men being drawn into the service—all tend to make us more conscious of our duty in the war effort.

We need more concerted leadership on every home front. Not just lip service but actual leadership to arouse the people to their full duty and to see that it is done.

During the past two months we have expended a terrific amount of energy on a political campaign. Just half that much energy expended on the home front in support of the war effort would have a tremendous effect on the early termination of the war.

We are finding out more and more every day that we cannot go on in our usual way. We are headed for more drastic times than this country has ever known. I think the people are willing enough if the proper leadership and direction is provided. There is so much to be done, there are so many ways in which we can contribute to the war effort on the home front—the will is there—all that is needed is that magic touch of real local leadership to start the thing to going right.

Of course, there are some who are more concerned about getting gas to run a few extra miles, a little more sugar than they need and all that sort of stuff. There are those who ignore the President's urge to cut down speed on your car to save rubber—but the great majority of the people are ready and willing to put their heart and soul into the battle for victory if properly led and directed.

We are in a war to the finish. There is no half-way mark. There won't be any negotiated peace—it is a fight to survive. It is either destroy the enemy or be destroyed and enslaved. Most of the fighting is far from our home—but it CAN be right here in our own back yard.

Here at home we must go into action. Not just piddle around here and there, but get our communities organized in a serious way and have definite objectives. We at home have clamored long and loud for our military leaders to take the offensive. Why not an all-out offensive on the home front? A few people here and there have done wonderful work and they deserve great credit for what they have accomplished. That isn't enough—we need more recruits, more action, more results and more determination. More sacrifices will be in order and the full weight of the civilian population MUST be thrown into the battle.

An effort was made to round up the scrap metal of the nation to keep our blast furnaces going. It proved a failure. It failed for lack of appreciation of the vital necessity for this precious metal so badly needed for tanks, guns, ships, airplanes and other war supplies. We haven't touched the great pile of scrap available in this nation.

Preseident Roosevelt, through his OPM chief, Donald Nelson, will make another try for this metal. The newspapers of the nation have been called in to assist in this job. It is the first time that newspapers of the nation have been called upon by the government to do a specific job in this war. We in the newspaper profession are going to undertake the job and are planning a nation-wide drive to collect all scrap metal, rubber and the like.

The newspapers can't do this job by themselves. We can write and write—we can print pictures and all that—but unless the leaders in the various local communities lend their actual cooperation and leadership to rally the people we can't do it.

You are going to be called upon to help. I know you will help and I know you will do it gladly. We are going to see to that. We are going to see to it that such scrap as you turn in gets to the mills where it will go directly into war supplies.

Arrangements will be made to collect the scrap. Trucks will have regular routes to travel and stop to pick up this precious metal. Some of you will give it—others will be paid—as your conscience dictates.

Those bone yards of wrecked automobiles are going to disappear. The government is taking care of that and is grabbing this metal as fast as they can legally proceed. Those who have been hoarding scrap metal are going to feel the heavy hand of Uncle Sam. The price is fixed. There are tons and tons of broken down machinery scattered all over this land. We must and will gather this up so it can be turned into implements of war.

Our boys will need tremendous amounts of guns, shells, tanks and supplies, ships to haul them in and to keep them coming. Begin to look about you now and watch for further details and announcements about the big scrap metal drive that is in the making. There will be something for you to do and I know you will do it.

I Told You So . . .

The papers are filled with warnings that only the most drastic actions will avert uncontrolled inflation.

In 1932, as the files of the Grenada Sentinel will disclose, I warned that no individual, no company, no corporation or no government could spend more than it took in without experiencing bankruptcy; that, while the government had the exclusive right to print money, it would never actually be bankrupt in the accepted sense, but that its currency would be almost valueless. In 1932, I put a bale of cotton in the compress and stated at the time that, if the practice of spending more than income was continued long enough, that one bale of cotton would, when sold, pay everything I owed. The cotton was worth about 5 cents a pound in 1932; it is worth at least 20 cents today. NOTHING has happened to the cotton. But SOMETHING has happened to the dollar.

Through the columns of the Grenada Sentinel, of which I was the editor for about four years, and thru the columns of this newspaper I have often repeated these warnings of impending inflation.

I hope my dire prophesies do not come true, for inflation will ruin all of us. Yet, these predictions WILL come true unless ceiling prices be placed on ALL things and on ALL services.

Today the government is spending infinitely more than its income. It has three ways to obtain money, viz: borrow it, get it by taxation and print it. The government is making a gallant effort to borrow the money through sale of war bonds. Taxes will be infinitely higher. There will still remain a wide gap between income and outgo. Unless this gap is closed by huge sales of war securities, the printing presses will work three shifts. Every new dollar that is created by the printing press method makes YOUR dollars less valuable.

This is being written to keep the record straight.

Spotlight On Dixie

By HERBERT B. ALLEN

"We are all dependent on one another, every last soul of us on earth"—George Bernard Shaw. Does this truth have any special significance to the South today?

From the Gulf of Mexico to the Hudson Bay, no region on this vast continent is confronted with such baffling problems as those which confront the cotton and tobacco belts in the Southern states.

Nowhere is there greater urgency for heeding the full force of Mr. Shaw's statement. We are all dependent on one another. While this truth applies forcefully to our daily activities, it applies with even greater force to the cooperative effort essential to solving our vital problems of the future.

What are the dark clouds which cast so menacing a shadow of uncertainty over the future? Conspicuous among them are our blind conservatism, and the paralyzing prejudice and intolerance that flourish among us.

Have oppressive conservatism, and vicious prejudice and intolerance, ever been the bright symbols of a Christian civilization? Have they ever been eminent qualities of Anglo-Saxon character? Have they ever been enumerated among the glorious principles of our American Democracy? Have they ever reflected the honor and dignity of the proud South?

No one disputes the prevalence of our antiquated conservatism; or denies the widespread existence of prejudice and intorerance among us. It is not their existence that is challenged. It is their RIGHT to exist that is challenged!

* * * *

In this CHANGING world, can the South ever hope of provide a reasonably high standard of living for the average family if we remain shackled to the mental habits and public policies of the past? Can the South remain suspected in time, with its body in the twentieth century and its mind in the nineteenth century?

Can the South remain suspended in space, under leadership that is chronically in reverse gear; leadership that chants Democracy while practicing something strongly suggestive of Nazi Germany? Can the South remain indefinitely out of focus, monotonously viewing the present, through the spectacles of the past?

If this whirling world will no longer permit Central Asia and Central Africa to live unmolested in the shadow of the past, how can we expect to do so, with the mechanical clang of Detroit and Pittsburgh and Birmingham in our ears?

As the famous English writer, Gilbert K. Chesterton, so graphically pointed out: "Tradition does not mean that the living are dead. It means that the dead are living." Truly, nowhere in the western world do the dead live so actively, and so eloquently, as here in the deep South. The old Southerners were IMMORTAL—with a vengence!

Where else is there such conflict BETWEEN social classes: such lack of harmony WITHIN social classes: such general mistrust among ALL people, as prevails among us?

Where else can such widespread poverty, ignorance and disease be traced directly to our inveterate habit of attempting to manage twentieth century problems with nineteenth century methods?

Many reasons have been advanced in the attempt to explain our social and economic weakness, and our political stagnation and futility. What historic influences have contributed to our problems; and what modern influences continue to perpetuate them?

An earnest attempt will be made to answer these, and other pertinent questions, in a short series of articles designed to throw the penetrating rays of the SPOTLIGHT ON DIXIE.

* * * *

Through an examination of our traditions and customs; and a critical scrutiny of our practices, an attempt will be made to demonstrate that prevailing evils are being aggravated, in our time, by an ultra-conservative complex that paralyzes constructive thinking in the Southern mind.

In this wide region, all that is progressive in social and economic thought is viewed, first with suspecion, then with hostility, and finally—with alarm! And I mean—ALARM!

Thus, it may be truthfully contended that while our acute problems are of a social and economic character, the greatest obstacles that block their early solution are our mental indolence and stagnation.

No important progress toward the solution of our more complex problems may be expected until we have the intellectual honesty, and the moral courage to face this unpleasant fact: THE ROOT OF OUR EVILS LIES IN THE INTOLERANCE AND STAGNATION OF THE SOUTHERN MIND!

* * * *

The South contains every important ingredient essential to our general prosperity. But—until we encourage constructive thinking, instead of smothering and ridiculing it; until we demand progressive action that will put constructive thinking into practice—we are going to achieve the rewards of general prosperity.

We cannot solve the future by gazing intently at the past—because our past WAS NOT successful. We cannot solve the future by blandly ignoring its existance. We have been trying these two experiences for many years; and NEITHER OF THEM WORK!

God has endowed us with intelligence, and with the capacity for industry. Our intelligence, if applied; and our industry, if exerted, could transform the South into a veritable paradise. If it is not our patriotic duty to concert our efforts toward making the South a paradise both for present and future generations, then whose duty it is to make that effort?

Philosophers wrote the Constituion of the United States; but architects, engineers and craftsmen build our national Capitol. Both of these monuments to the nobility of our forefathers were made possible by constructive thinking, and progressive action. Does any Mississippian rise to claim that what was possible for them, with their ancient facilities, is not possible for us, with our modern facilities? What brain and brawn achieved elsewhere, they can achieve here.

In the realization that any general prosperity in the South will depend upon the concerted effort, and mutual good will of ALL classes of our society, the shrewd wisdom of George Bernard Shaw has great significance for the South today: "We are all dependent on one another, every last soul of us on earth."

* * * *

Not in the rash spirit of destructive criticism, but in the charitable spirit of constructive analysis, the SPOTLIGHT ON DIXIE will seek to illuminate the causes of our continued backwardness. Our sole motive in revealing the past and the present, will be to develop avenues leading toward a happy and prosperous Southland.

We owe to every boy and girl in Dixie that rich heritage which should be the birthright of every young person born under the grand old Stars and Stripes.

Greatly improved conditions in the South can only be realized after Lib ral sentiments and principles have been widely accepted in the South. One thing is certain: Southern conservatism is permitting the South to die slowly of dry rot.

Southern conservatism has strewn the path of the South with ruins from Virginia to Texas. Its most conspicuous symbol is the rotting cabin. It does not even pretend to have an intelligent program for a great New South. It faces the past with a sigh—it faces the future with dismay!

Liberal minded men form a very small group in the South; but they are an active minority, and their numbers are increasing gradually. Kindred spirits are coming rapidly to look upon rational liberal policies as the salvation of their beloved homeland.

This splendid tribute to liberal minded men and women may be of interest to many Southerners who are inclined to view the present situation of the South as virtually hopeless:

"What is a minority? The chosen heroes of this earth have been in the minority. There is not a social, or religious privilege that YOU enjoy today that was not bought for YOU by the blood and tears and patient suffering of the minority. It is the minority that have stood in the van of every moral conflict, and achieved all that is noble in the history of the world."

THE HOME FRONT

REGIONAL OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION

Ceiling on wages, salaries and farm products are set up as the answer to creeping inflation which OPA has not been able to step entirely by its control of merchandise and services.

Talk about drafting 18 and 19-year-old youths is a hot topic. Boys that age probably should count on going into the army sometime around Christmas. Married men without children will go before then.

MEAT RATIONING

Meat will appear less frequently on our tables, for its rationing is a certainty in the near future. Our total meat supply is the largest on record, but because of the needs of the fighting forces and the distress of our allies, we will run three billion pounds short of giving folks at home all the meat they might want next year.

You can count on two and one-half pounds per person a week. This compares with one pound a week in rationed England. Germans are allowed only 12 ounces a week—the Belgians a mere five ounces.

SEAMEN NEEDED

Registration of former sailors on our merchant vessels begins this week. Seamen and officers who've had previous exrepience are badly needed to man ships today.

CARPENTERS IN GREAT DEMAND

Acute labor shortages are appearing in almost every line of work. Civil Civil Service is asking for men and women who have any skill or training and paying good salaries.

BUY COAL NOW

Warnings have been issued anew that Southerners face a coal shortage this winter unless they buy coal now.

OPA has increased the legal charge for loading peanuts from 50c to 75c a ton.

Government geologists have launched plants to obtain aluminum from more than 500,000 tons of bauxite in Georgia.

NO BICYCLE BUILT FOR YOU

WPB has curtailed bicycle production from 150,000 a month to 10,000 and limted production to two factories. Few civilians will get new bikes unless they really need them.

The railroad situation is improving.

There'll be no more woolen lounging robes made for men and boys . . . and WPB is cracking down on makers of "Zoot suits" and "Juke coats' popular with jitterbugs.

JAPS CHANGE TUNE

The Japanese propaganda service announced the "annihilation" of the American Pacific fleet after the battle of the Coral Seas. Now, broadcasts warn the Mikado's slaves to prepare for "fresh attacks by a superior force." Thus, Tokyo "admits" we have a fleet.

FRIENDSHIP CLUB

The Club held its September meeting with Mrs. D. W. Pickle.

Everyone seemed glad to be back after a month's vaction.

The minutes were read and approved, after which, Mrs. Johns led in devotional.

Mrs. Neely was unable to attend for business reasons, so Mrs. Aldridge, our club president, very ably conducted the meeting.

The entire membership approved the suggestion that we meet each third Wednesday for an hour or so of Bible study.

Mrs. B. L. Taylor, recreational leader, had a most unusual game that produced many laughs. rMs. Milton Mitchell won the prize, a glass of jelly.

We were glad to add another name, Mrs. Earl Trim, to our growing list of members.—Contributed.

Camp McCain News

Seven cyclists were touring the new highway this Tuesday night much to the dismay of the Highway Patrolmen. The occasion was a farewell party for the very popular Miss Dorothy Whitaker, who left Wednesday afternoon to attend the University of Missouri, where she will be a junior. Members of the party were Louise Sanderson, Margery Smith, Peter Akraboff, Louise Hyer, Cynthia Wade, LeRoy Pittman and Dorothy. Dorothy was one of the most popular employees of Chas. T. Main, and all of her friends are looking forward to Christmas vacation, when she will return for a brief visit.

Elizabeth Oakley spent last week end in Senatobia, visiting her many friends there.

Mr. Tardiff, of the Mechanical Department, is now back at Camp, and insists that his recovery is complete enough for him to work all day. There are now high hopes and many rumors of a little heat on these cold fall mornings in the Camp buildings.

One of the gayer parties of last week-end was that trip to Memphis made by some of the Jones lads. The Chief Engineer of the trip was, as usual, Dale Savage, and the party included Mr. John D. Pellett, Purchasing Agent; Mr. Jake Ruben, whose putting the asphalt on these supperroads, Mr. Dennis Norton, Safety Engineer, taken along as a precaution). The occasion was the receiving and the welcoming of Dale's mother, who visited him for a few days this week, returning Tuesday to Oklahoma City.

Miss Mildred Hayles spent a very enjoyable week-end in Memphis visiting her brother and his family. Another visitor to the Tennessee Metropolis was Mr. R. R. Edmundson, of the Cost Department of the U. S. Engineers. He alleges that he was visiting his sister.

Mr. and Mrs. James Scott and the Major Wade's spent a very enjoyable evening at the Claude Nickerson's last Saturday. Mrs. Nickerson went to Memphis to shop last week-end, and it is rumored that now there are more lovely clothes in her closet than in the windows at Levy's.

Mr. Peter Akraboff, CTM's Draftsman from Sophia, Bulgaria, spent the week-end in Jackson, and Saturday night at the Rotisserie. Peter has picked up American customs as fast as he has the language, and he is quite a seasoned week-ender now, to the great delight of the Jacksonites.

Miss Marie Trusty spent last week end at home in Water Valley. She is Capt. Trice's secretary, you know.

Alfonse Kaufman, Jr., son of Mr. A. Kaufman, Senior Engineer with the U. S. Engineers, visited his father in Grenada this week. Alfonse has been stationed at Fort Barrancas, Florida, and he is now on his way to Officer's Training School.

Mrs. H. W. Lunceford went to Memphis this Tuesday with Mrs. Garland Heard.

Mrs. Cornelia Touchberry is going to spend this coming week-end in Glen Allen with her aprents.

Major Bush and Col. Grimaldi spent last week-end in Atlanta, on strictly military business, according to direct authority but the business is a military secret.

Two more of the government boys have returned to school. Johnny Lombardi is now attending Christian Brother's College in Memphis, and Carlene Soloman returned to Mississippi State College. Lloyd McDougal, also with the U. S. Engineers, was called into the service this week, and is at present at receiving station, where he is awaiting his assignment to a definite branch of the service.

All of you Grenada girls must be aware by now that Bob Steele and his roommate, Henry Mitchell, have definitely moved into Grenada from Duck Hill. For those who are interested, and most everyone is, the address is, at present, College Boulevard.

Mrs. T. J. Phillips is giving a tea this Sunday at her home in Grenada in honor of her mother, Mrs. Caleb Fox, who is a very popular visitor

Mr. Morgan L. Warren, Chief Project Auditor for the U. S. Engineers, and Mr. MacNicholas, of C. T. M., attended a conference Monday and Tuesday in Vicksburg. They listened to some interesting addresses given by some of the important defense leaders from Washington, D. C. One of the most interesting happenings was a blackout one night, during which all of Vicksburg was in total darkness. Despite mutual accusations, neither of the gentlemen involved were at all responsible.

STAG PARTY

Mr. Will Lessard gave a stag party last night (Thursday) at his home in Grenada for Mr. Douglas Johnson, who will be married Oct. 3rd. The guest list includes Messrs. L. S. Phillips, H. D. Frye, Robert Moor, S. W. Wells, Doug Johnson, Lloyd Day, Chas Dawson, Fred Just, Leo Carroll, Bob Steele, Henry Mitchell and Chas. Tariff.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYE

By Mrs. W. W. Whitaker

"And if our lines should sag and break
Because of things you fail to make;
That extra tank, that ship, that plane
For which we waited all in vain,
Will you then come to take the blame?
For we, not you, must pay the cost
Of battles you, not we, have lost."

The above lines, if read carefully, will make a soldier of you!

We read every day of men and women who leave their jobs because of some difference of opinion arising between employer and employee. We know that the strike in the Mobile Shipyard was called because those men forgot their obligations and in a temporay mood of anger left their job, thereby causing our Navy to have one less ship to carry supplies to our boys who are fighting our battles in foreign lands. The men working in defense plants, including ship yards, are deferred. If they strike, then where does that place them? Back in private life—or in the army? If they strike, they are not employees any more, therefore they are not deferred, and according to our reasoning—they are just another bunch of men for the draft board to classify.

"Waste—The Enemy at Home" is the title of an article in the September issue of "The Readers Digest" and it's author is none other than one of our favorite Senators, Hon. Harry F. Byrd, of Virgina.

His first shot is "While Americans fight for their lives and pay to the hilt, government spend thrifts toss away two billion dollars a year on bands, publicity, pork barrel projects and treasury leeches." And asks "How can we stop it?"

We have only to read the papers to know that Washington continues to pour out money as furiously for non-essentials as it does for war purposes. Many groups insist on keeping the unemployed on relief rolls while others want "cultural" projects to continue.

He gives as an example the WPA's request for $123,737 to organize bands, choruses and orchestras among WPA workers, to teach those who couldn't play, to furnish fiddles and bass drums to those who had none.

Mr. Byrd said that the National Youth Administration was created to fight the depression—but that has passed with farms and factories crying for laborers. He said there are "millions still receiving what some call charity in one form or another from the U. S. givernment."

Mr. Byrd who is a member of the non - essential Federal Expenriture Committee states that in the hearings since Nov. of '41, they have recommended to Congress and the President, specific cuts of $1,301,075,000 and that investigation shows that $2,000,000,000 can be saved next year. Further stated that almost everybody who works in a non-essential government position has convinced himself and attempts to convince others that we can't fight a good-war if he or she lose their job. This great nation is in danger and it's time for people to quit saying "gimme" and begin saying "I will give." Out with them, they are a drag on the war effort!

Seen, Heard and Told By The Editor

A good many of our country subscribers should save up two dollars from those $50.00 cottonseed—thanks to Jim Easland—to pay up.

First thing Mabel and I know we will be like we started, with no children with us; two boys in the armed forces, and two girls off at school.

Who wants to buy a first class Westinghouse motor, 1 horsepower, three phase?

We note that our esteemed subscriber, Mrs. W. B. Stark, has returned to Enid, Oklahoma from Florence, Ala., where she has been for several months. Hope you had a nice visit, Mrs. Stark.

Unless drastic actions are taken, and taken real soon, a dollar will not buy a pinch of snuff. MY bale of cotton, which I put up ten years ago, will sell for $100 a pound. Foolish?, Remember what happened to Germany's currency when it required a suitcase filled with money to buy an egg.
